Benefits of being a clinical supervisor

Supervision is beneficial to health care professionals. It allows for the improvement of the:

Valorization
- Increased work satisfaction
- Better understanding of self and how to work with others
- Pleasure in giving to others
- Feeling of professional and personal valorization
- Reduction of professional isolation
- Reduced stress levels
- Emotional encounters that nourish the desire to pass on
- Valuation of one's own knowledge
- Sense of accomplishment
- Increased energy through relationships
- Contact with the new generation
- Appreciation as an employee
Benefits of being a clinical supervisor

Supervision is beneficial to health care professionals.

It allows for the improvement of the:

Professional skills

- Development of professional skills (e.g. time management)
- Access to recent knowledge, expansion of knowledge
- Opportunity for reflective practice (self-evaluation)
- Validation of the relevance of the tools used
- Confrontation of our practice with other perspectives, facilitation of self-evaluation
- New meaning of our practices, a new vision of our work
- Closer contact with the evidence
Benefits of being a clinical supervisor

Supervision is beneficial to health care professionals. It allows for the improvement of the:

Teaching skills
- Development of teaching skills
- Learning skills to provide feedback
- Opportunity to act as a role model
- Development of clinical reasoning skills
- Development of andragogy knowledge
- Conflict management
- Increased communication skills
- Consolidation of learning through teaching
Benefits of being a clinical supervisor

Other benefits

- Improved links with the academic community
- Access to certain benefits offered by the educational institutions (e.g., continuing education activities)
- Confronting our practice with other perspectives
- Assistance with self-assessment of practice
- Opportunity to diversify our interventions
- Career opportunities (opening)
- Direct contribution to clinical activities
- Recognition Award
- Continuing education credits